Chief Justice Joseph Lambert Swears in 16 New Officers at Police Corps Graduation

RICHMOND, Ky. – Kentucky Supreme Court Chief Justice Joseph Lambert swore in the 16 graduates of the Kentucky Police Corps class today.

“This is just about the best day there could be,” Lambert said to the new officers at their graduation ceremony. “The people of Kentucky have a great deal of confidence in you. We, and I speak as a citizen, we look forward to your service to your police departments, to your communities, to your county and to the entire state for many years to come.”

Police Corps is a federally funded program that provides up to $15,000 in scholarship money in exchange for a four-year commitment to a local law enforcement agency. The cadets complete a 23-week training schedule that reaches far beyond the 16-week basic training required by the Department of Criminal Justice Training. Police Corps cadets also participate in several enhanced areas of training, including an intensive Spanish language and Mexican culture program that is capped off by two weeks in Mexico.
